

Wild • Art • Safari

Join artist and conservationist, Alex Beard, as he ventures into the authentic wilderness of southern Kenya to set up an adventure camp for exploration and creativity.

The private, mobile tented camp will move from a remote wilderness area near Tsavo National Park to another wildlife haven where elephants roam in the shadow of Mt. Kilimanjaro. The camp will double as an art studio and a base from which you will set off on driving and walking safaris to explore deep culture and immense wilderness.

This is not an art class. It is an open invitation to join Alex as he sets off tracking wildlife and finding inspiration while turning camp into a working art studio. Participants are welcome to make their own art – whatever that may be – but by no means is it a requirement.

Alex's art will be shown in an exhibition for The Watering Hole Foundation at his gallery in New Orleans with proceeds earmarked to help communities in Kenya keep wild lands healthy and intact.
